

PLAIN TEXT SUMMARY

Primary care physician panel

Doctors and patients sometimes have trouble understanding each other.

The way doctors' offices work can make it hard for doctors to listen.

Here are some important ideas shared by doctors in this video:

- It is hard to be a doctor in most places.
- Doctors' offices don't let doctors spend enough time with patients.
- All Brains Belong's guide called Everything is Connected to Everything has helped these doctors give better care to neurodivergent patients.

Key terms:

Double empathy problem	Dr. Damian Milton made up these words. This means people can have a hard time talking and understanding each other. This happens when people's brains see the world in different ways.
------------------------	--

More learning:

- "Everything is Connected to Everything: Improving the Healthcare of Autistic & ADHD Adults" Free Resource
- "Everything's Connected to Everything: Improving the Healthcare of Autistic and ADHD Adults" Webinar