VOICES & STORIES

At ABB, healthcare is community. Patients come here to meet other patients. They learn they're not alone. They belong to a community of people who not only "get" it, but show up for one another.

"This is a mutual aid program," explains Sierra Miller DNP APRN. "It means something when we tell patients that this is something that the community they belong to has created for them. It's not charity. Also they're not just getting medicines or groceries - they're getting community."

"Too long have people felt like they don't have a right to community. It's important to change that narrative. Community is where healing happens."

-Simone Arnold, ABB Community Advisory Board member

"This community makes me feel safe. I don't know what I would have done without this community and the resources I can access here."

- ABB community member

Community care meetup in our parking lot - distributing aid, making art, being together

Patients frequently come in and leave little presents for others in the office, a heart rock, a supportive note, hand made art - acts of acknowledgment and solidarity.

The Community Health & Access Fund bridges the gaps that the healthcare system leaves behind

Your generosity is transformative.

When we asked people what they needed, they said: food, medicines, and not feeling alone. You're making it possible to provide those things. During these difficult times, we are beyond grateful for your partnership. Thank you!
